Exploring the structure of depression in the clinic. Although the structure of depression has been investigated in both naturalistic and controlled settings, little is known about the role of individual differences in such a structure. The current study examined the structure of depression in treatment-seeking patients, and tested for the importance of a unifactorial versus multifactorial model. In addition, associations between depressive symptoms, other variables and treatment outcome were examined. Two factors emerged. One reflected the DSM-IV criteria for depressive episode, the other represented the DSM-IV criteria for severity of depressive episode. These were independent of patient and therapist characteristics and contributed to a significant proportion of the variance of treatment outcome. In particular, the presence of early life depression was associated with greater severity of later life depression. The current study supports the view that depression is a multifactorial disorder, in that severity of depression is associated with the presence of early life depression, which in turn is associated with severity of depression in later life. In addition to informing the theoretical and treatment implications of these findings, the study suggests that estimates of the size of the personality-depression link should be treated with caution.

Q: AutoHotKey Writing a macro to set Desktop Wallpaper I have a wallpaper of a specific size that I'd like to automatically set for each new window in my computer. I figured it'd be a good idea to write an AutoHotKey macro to automatically set the wallpaper. I'm using Windows 8. I'm new to AutoHotKey and the documentation seems to be outdated and scattered and I have no idea where to even begin. Does anyone have any suggestions on how to accomplish this in AHK? I'd appreciate any help!
